Longitude by the Atlantic Cable

Though the importance of the submarine telegraph across the Atlantic is chiefly felt commercially there are other and very interesting uses to which it may be put. One of these is the determination of the difference of geographical longitude between the New and Old Worlds. The Boston Transcript says:

The telegraphic method of finding longitudes far surpasses all others in the accuracy of its results. Its conception is due to S. C. Walker of the United States Coast Survey, but its full development in the form which is now employed in the Coast Survey is the work of Dr. B. A. Gould, of Cambridge, which, everything considered, stands undoubtedly at the head of American astronomical science.

During the past fifteen or twenty years the coast survey has determined by this method the longitudinal differences of a series of points in United States, with an exactness far surpassing what has ever been attained on the other side of the Atlantic. Indeed, in all work of this kind Europeans seem to meet with singularly poor success.

The difference of longitude between England and America has hitherto depended upon the chronometric expeditions instituted by the Coast Survey during the years of 1849 '51 and 1855. Fifty chronometers were transported between Liverpool, England and Cambridge, Massachusetts, three times in each direction across the Atlantic. The probable error of the result of these expeditions was nineteen hundredths of a second. The value thus obtained, though for all practical purposes sufficiently precise, is not so for the necessities of astronomical science in its present refined state. When, therefore the success of the cable provided telegraphic, transatlantic connection with England, parties of the Coast Survey were formed under the direction of Dr. B. A. Gould, to take advantage of this means of obtaining a value more precise than that furnished by the chronometric expeditions, allusion to which has been made.

The peculiarities in the methods and apparatus employed in working the cable, render the process of determining the longitude by its means different in many respects from that by the land telegraph lines. New obstacles, which made success exceedingly doubtful, were to be surmounted and new sources of error eliminated. But thanks to the genius, experience and perseverance of Dr. Gould, these have been overcome, and results of remarkable precision elicited. The probable error of the resulting longitude is about four hundredths of a second. Perhaps it will give the reader a clearer idea of the nicety implied in this, by stating that a distance of about nineteen hundred miles has been measured, and that the measure is not probably more than forty feet from the truth.

The time required for a signal to pass through the cable has been discovered with still greater precision to be thirty one hundredths of a second, which is probably not in error by one hundredth of a second.

This is equivalent to a velocity of 6,020 miles a second, and is notably less than the velocity of the electric fluid upon land lines, which numerous observations has shown to average 16,000 miles a second.

It should be a matter of national pride that Americans have obtained the precedence in a work of such importance. This importance will perhaps be more popularly appreciated from the fact that this longitude determination was fully determined upon, and partially prepared for, by the English, and seriously contemplated by the French, when Americans, with characteristic vivacity, stepped in and bore away the prize.

CAUGHT IN HIS OWN TRAP.—In the interior of the State of New York, an incident happened the other day, which clearly exemplifies the fact that unscrupulous avariciousness is very liable to lay traps in which itself is caught. The Canal Commissioners found it necessary to draw largely from one of the Eastern lakes, and in doing so out off the supply of several flouring mills, the owners of which subsequently filed claims against the State for damages. The owner of one of these mills prepared his papers to file with the Board of Canal Commissioners with much care, that his claim might be clearly established by documentary proofs. Among the other papers was an affidavit as to the daily profits of the mill while it was running, and the damage consequent upon its being stopped for want of water. The sum named in the affidavit as the daily profits was quite large—nearly $100. The Commissioner in charge examined the papers carefully, scanning the affidavit with close scrutiny. This done he turned to the claimant with the remark:

"This affidavit is correct, I suppose?"

"Yes," was the prompt reply. "The sum named as the daily profits of the mill you are sure is correct?" "All right, sir." "Very well, when I have compared this affidavit with your return to the Assessor of Internal Revenue, if I find it to compare with your income report I shall take pleasure in favoring the payment of your claim; but until then I can give no assurance."

This was a regular bomb shell. The claimant turned red in the face, and was seized with a sudden series of short coughs. He would like to have the affidavit back, so that he might again compare it with his books and be quite sure it was correct. The Commissioner shook his head. Claimant fancied that there might be an inadvertent error somewhere. Commissioner thought not. Claimant nervously desperate. Commissioner calmly inexorable. And so the situation had to stand. The result has not transpired yet, but the impression seems to be that there is a discrepancy somewhere between the affidavit supporting the mill owner's claim and the affidavit verifying his revenue returns.

THE GRAIN MARKET—SOMETHING RADICALLY WRONG.—It is but recently that the price of California wheat was quoted in the New York market at $3 07½ per hundred pounds in gold, and at that time the price paid to farmers by shippers ranged from $1 40 to $1 50. During the month of January something like 1,700 tons left Stockton for the Bay, having been sent forward by commission merchants to the orders of shippers in San Francisco, to meet the exportation demand. The average price then paid to the farmer was, say thirty dollars per ton, while in New York the same grain was realizing over seventy nine dollars in gold, leaving a very handsome profit for speculators, surely. Freight by steamer at a cent and a half per pound reduced the amount realized to a little more than forty nine dollars, or to sixty one dollars if shipped by Cape Horn, at eighteen dollars per ton. The difference then between first cost and sixty one dollars is the amount per ton which falls into the hands of speculators for their trouble and risk—more than the producer receives. It is amusing to perceive how the market is managed and controlled by buyers, in order to extort the grain from the farmer at less than its real value. It will be recollected that for a short time wheat was quoted by the San Francisco papers at $2 10, and we believe at one time as high as $2 15. At that very time, as we have been credibly informed, shippers were loading vessels for the Atlantic States at $2 05 and $2 07. The real object of quoting at $2 10 was to prevent those who were not in the secret from having a fair show at the market, and induce them to retain what grain they had on hand until such time as the vessels awaiting cargoes could be supplied by the professional dealers.—Stockton Independent.

NEW YORK POSTOFFICE.—The prospect brightens for a postoffice worthy of this city and the Union, in place of the old meeting house and encumbrant horse sheds now used for the purpose in Nassau street. The Secretary of the Interior and acting Postmaster General have united in a strong recommendation to Congress of prompt action in accordance with the report of the Commissioners who investigated the subject during the recess. The House Postoffice Committee have agreed to report the bill, and there should be every reason to hope that the necessary appropriation will now be made. The site proposed is the triangular southern end of the City Hall Park, opposite the front of Park Row corner of the Scientific American office. Its area is 65,259 square feet—equal to about 25 city lots. The ground will cost $500,000, and a building is proposed at a cost of $1,000,000, for the accommodation of the postoffice and United States courts. The average of outgoing and incoming mails at this office has increased in the last ten years from ten tons to ninety or one hundred tons per day. Fronting all sides on broad streets, the proposed new postoffice will have every facility of access and departure for this heavy business.—Scientific American.

A Chicago paper says "St. Louis is a collection of houses on the west bank of the Mississippi."

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO MARCH 13.

Congressional.

NEW YORK, March 12.—In the Senate, Cole, of California, introduced a bill to enable California to reclaim certain swamp and overflowed lands; also a bill to grant lands for the construction of a canal for purposes of irrigation. Referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Conness called up his resolution directing the payment to Donohue and Ryan of $12,000, to make good their losses on the iron-clad Camanche. Passed.

In the Senate Wilson, of Massachusetts, from the Military Committee, reported back a joint resolution declaring that whereas arms and equipments for the militia of the State of Tennessee were taken and destroyed by rebels during the late rebellion, and the present Executive of that State deems it necessary to preserve the public peace of that State, deems it necessary to employ the militia therefor, the Secretary of War is hereby authorized and directed to furnish arms and equipments for 25,000 militia to the Governor of Tennessee. Wilson asked for the immediate consideration of the resolution. Johnson, of Maryland, objected and the resolution went over.

Sumner, of Massachusetts, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, reported back the bill with regard to French spoliations and the bill to provide for the defense of the Northern frontiers with favorable recommendations in each case.

Nye, of Nevada, introduced a preamble and resolution declaring the sympathy of the United States with the Irish people in their struggle against British oppression and asked for its immediate consideration. Sumner objected and the resolution went over.

Saulsbury, of Delaware, introduced a resolution directing the Secretary of War to return to the armories and arsenals of Delaware, certain arms and equipments belonging to that State taken by the Government during the rebellion. Referred to the Military Committee.

Adjourned.

In the House Stevens of Pennsylvania introduced a joint resolution providing for the expense of carrying into effect the act of the 2d of March, for the more efficient government of the rebel States and supplementary acts, and moved to make the amount five millions. The motion was agreed to and the resolution passed.

The Senate joint resolution of thanks to George Peabody was referred to the Committee of the Whole.

The Senate joint resolution appropriating $150,000 for the relief of the destitute colored people of the District of Columbia, was passed.

The Senate joint resolution, appropriating $1,000,000 for the relief of destitute persons in the South and Southwest, was referred to the Committee of the Whole.

Cooper, of Tennessee, moved that the House go into a Committee of the Whole, to dispose of the bills thus referred. The motion was rejected.

Lawrence, of Pennsylvania, introduced a resolution instructing the Committee to report a rule requiring the Committees to report back without delay all bills and joint resolutions referred to them. Adopted.

Washington News.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Special dispatches from Washington say the supplementary reconstruction bill will doubtless be sent to the President on Thursday or Friday. It can hardly be expected that he will sign it, but if he vetoes it promptly Congress will at once enact it over the veto and adjourn until October. The tariff bill and all other important financial measures are certain to go over till next fall.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The President's friends assert that he will sign the supplemental reconstruction bill which passed the House yesterday, if Congress will adjourn within a week.

A committee appointed by the Virginia Legislature arrived here to-day and had a conference with the Senate Military Committee, and urged the passage of the bill with slight amendments.

Generals Grant and Schofield had a protracted interview with the President last night and to-day in regard to affairs in the South. The commanders for the five military districts will be announced in a day or two.

The Judiciary Committee of the House to-day examined several witnesses from the rebel States in regard to impeachment. The evidence relates to the property turned over to the rebels by the order of the President.

The commissioner of the general land office has returns showing the disposal of 7,222 acres during January, at the following offices: Marysville 4,190, Visalia 1,686; Vancouver 1,339. The greater portion was taken up under the homestead act.

A dispatch from the Southern Relief Committee here to Gen. Howard, states that though the one million appropriation pass, private subscriptions should not stop. A half million dollars should be raised by the Northern people.

Gov. Jenkins, of Georgia, telegraphs that sixty thousand whites and thirty thousand blacks are destitute. The committee are loading another Government ship, and expect to send three next week.

Members of the Maryland Legislature are pressing Congress to donate twelve millions to the Southern people to aid their present necessities. It is urged by many that if the amount be furnished these States they will never repay; but that it is only a scheme to hold up dilapidated merchants and bankruptcy.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Senor Lassara, for ten years Spanish Minister has been recalled and succeeded by Senor Facundo Goni. The President has appointed Judge S. Whitaker, District Attorney, and Gen. Herron U. S. Marshal for New Orleans. There has been a great contest for nominations. It is said that Gen. Sheridan's order prohibiting the elections in New Orleans was issued under instructions from the President, who gave Sheridan authority to depose Gov. Wells and Mayor Monroe, if necessary.

From Virginia.

NEW YORK, March 13.—The Herald's special says the General Assembly of Virginia are jubilant at the passage of Wilson's bill in the House. Gov. Pierpont says Congress is badly sold. The vote of the Union men and negroes is regarded list for Radical purposes (!)

The Committee consisting of Senators Gild, McRae, Myer, Robertson, and Keen, appointed to urge the passage of Wilson's bill, arrived at the Ebbitt House this evening.

The Richmond Dispatch has it upon high authority that Schofield will be Commander of the Virginia District. The Times' special says Schofield will have the first District, Sickles the second, Thomas the third, Ord the fourth and Sheridan the fifth.

The Tribune's special says it is certain that Meade will be appointed in place of Thomas and Sherman will succeed Sheridan, who goes to the Indian country.

The Tribune's correspondent says that office seekers are arriving in unprecedented numbers. The principal bones of contention are the Registers for bankruptcy under the recent law, which provides for a Register in each Congressional District.

The Tribune says Senatorial tactics seem to have changed during the past few weeks. Straight out Democrats now stand the least chance of confirmation.

Prospects for Southern Reorganization.

NEW YORK, March 12.—The Evening Post says there is every prospect that the majority of the Southern States will almost immediately reorganize under the Reconstruction Act. This is shown, not alone by the language of the Southern journals, but by our own private information. Movements have already begun in North Carolina and Georgia.

A letter from Governor Patton of Alabama to Senator Sherman says: It is believed that the terms of reconstruction have already been agreed to at a caucus of the Union members of the North Carolina legislature, and C. L. Harris chairman was directed to designate not less than one hundred persons to assemble on the 27th of March to mature a plan for a convention to frame a Constitution. The chairman designated one hundred and forty persons.

The Richmond Examiner favors Wilson's supplement to the Reconstruction Act. If it is not passed they will certainly have two and it may be three conventions in Virginia.

Outrages in Texas.

GALVESTON, March 12.—Gen. Griffin has issued an order that in consequence of the repeated outrages and murders perpetrated in Grayson county, and the seeming unwillingness or inability of the civil officers to give the citizens protection, the operation of order No. 5 is suspended in Grayson county, and the sub Assistant of the Freedmen's Bureau is directed to arrest all persons charged with the commission of crimes or offences against citizens, refugees or freedmen in cases where the civil authority has failed to bring the parties to trial and retain them in confinement till proper judicial tribunals are ready to try them. The General also orders the use of military force to enforce order wherever required.

Lamp, Private Secretary to the Governor, has gone to Washington to consult with the President about reconstructing the State.

Aid asked for the Cretans.

NEW YORK, March 12.—A letter from the United States consul at Crete says from 10,000 to 20,000 Cretan refugees are in the most impoverished condition. Their property has been confiscated and they are unable to return to their homes. He asks food and clothing for them.

NEW YORK, March 12.—The Tribune's correspondent writing from Crete confirms the news that the Turks have actually abandoned the larger portion of the Island. It is also expected that they will be able to renew the war. Mustapha's ministry has been appointed in Constantinople to favorable to reform.

Fenian Matters.

DETROIT, March 12.—Fenianism is again on the rampage here. The leading men of the order talk boldly in favor of another movement upon Canada. One of the Ridgeway warriors has been appointed a General of a Detroit brigade, and is drilling detachments. Liberal subscriptions of money are also being made. The Head Center in this State and friends who opposed the Ridgeway movement are now in favor of a force for the invasion of Canada, claiming that by this course they can aid their friends in Ireland.

NEW YORK, March 12.—The Fenian excitement continues intense. A mass meeting is to be held to-night. It is proposed to raise one million dollars to equip a Fenian privateer.

Letters from Washington say that the Fenian Committee had been cordially received by Congressmen of both parties.

CHICAGO, March 13.—A large Fenian meeting was held last night. President Roberts was present and addressed the meeting, the object of which was to assist the men in Ireland and perfect harmony among all parties. Large numbers of men volunteered.

Excessive Cold.

The thermometer at Virginia, Montana, this morning, the 11th, was 27 degrees below zero; at Pleasant Valley, M. T., 24 degrees below; at Bear River, Idaho, 30 below, and at Bridger, Utah, 30 below.

National Democratic Committee.

CHICAGO, March 13.—The National Democratic Committee met at New York last night, at the residence of Aug. Belmont, and decided not to call a National Convention before the regular nominating one next year. Measures will be set on foot for the thorough organization of the Democratic party throughout the Union. Most of the Northern States were represented.

Cowan Again Rejected.

The Senate has again rejected Mr. Cowan's nomination as Minister to Vienna.

New Hampshire Election.

Mr. Harriman's (Republican) majority for Governor of New Hampshire is about 5,000. All the Republican Congressmen are elected.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13.—In the case of Charles Avery vs. The Central American Transit Company, tried in the United States Circuit Court, the jury last evening returned a verdict for $4,000 in favor of the plaintiff. The action was brought to recover damages alleged to have been sustained by plaintiff and family from being wrecked in the steamship Golden Rule on the Roncador reefs. The plaintiff claimed $2,000 for the loss of his baggage and the verdict would indicate that the jury intended to recompense plaintiff for the loss of his effects but not for the delay, inconvenience and annoyance which he sustained.

By the arrival of the bark D. C. Murray we learn of the wreck of the British bark Golden Sunset, from Newcastle, New South Wales for this port. Twenty of her passengers and eighteen of her crew had embarked on the bark Camden, which sailed from Honolulu for this port on February 9th, and is now due. No accounts are given as to how or where the disaster happened, on account of the mails and passengers from Honolulu being on board the Camden.

The suit of the United States vs. Certain Champagne Wines of the Lac d'or and Carte d'or brands, of which Locke & Montague are claimants is on trial in the United States District Court. This suit was tried about a year ago, when a verdict was rendered in favor of the Government. Judge Field substantially granted a new trial on points of law, and it is now being tried for a second time.

Produce Market.

Flour—There is but little doing apart from the usual jobbing trade. The next steamer for Panama will carry the usual cargo in transit for New York. Wheat owners are pretty firm in their views and the free movement of the market is consequently somewhat restrained. We are assured that offers as high as $1 80@1 82½ for choice lots have been refused. The idea that the market will do better than it has during the past two months is quite generally entertained.

Barley—the market for this grain does not improve. Feed 84½c, choice do 86c; brewing 87½c.

Oats—continue dull and sales are confined to small lots at $1@1 20.

Potatoes—Humboldt $1 20@1 25. Pigeon Point command $1 12½.

How a California Senator Prepared himself for a Great Speech.

[Washington Correspondence Cincinnati Commercial.]

Writing of speeches and the manner in which they are prepared and delivered, reminds me of an occurrence of last summer, which is a part of the history of the "great debate" on reconstruction and is worthy the dignity of print. We all remember what a perfect ocean of oratory inundated the Senate from January to July of last session. Speeches of less than two days endurance were the exceptions, and they occurred rarely. To adjourn in the middle of a ream of some honorable Senator's foolscap was the general rule. It got to be contagious after a while—this thing of speech making, or else an oratorical tarantula seemed to have bitten the entire Senate, and untied all tongues if it didn't undeaf all ears.

Among others who were afflicted with the cacoethes loquendi, which in the Senate is but the result of a previous attack of the cacoethes scribendi, was the honorable and eccentric Senator from California, Mr. McDougal. He had been on what in common parlance is known as a spree, but what in Congress is emphatically termed an indisposition, for several months—in fact hadn't been "off" of it in the memory of his brethren in statesmanship. He suddenly conceived the idea that he must give his view on the great questions pending before Congress. Like many other bacchanalian veterans, he knew very well his own weakness, and was conscious of the active form it had taken lately. In fact, he said to a friend that he had been as drunk as damnation for a long time, and that he couldn't make a speech unless he was sobered off somehow or other. The friend happened to be a sympathetic soul, disposed to gently send his brother man, on general principles but especially to give a helping hand to his erring senatorial brother, in this particular. "We'll fix it," said he. "If you'll come with me I'll get you straight as a parson in two days." The Senator acquiesced, went with his friend, and the sobering process commenced. It consisted of close confinement in a bed room, and a diet of soda water, vinegar pickles and light gruel for thirty six hours, at the end of which time the Senator was fit to preach a funeral sermon, or to sit on the supreme bench. The next thing was to get him "crammed" on reconstruction. His ideas were rolling about loosely in his head, and positively refused to settle on the terms to which his stomach had succumbed. After thinking the matter over a while, he concluded that the best plan was to get a quiet room in Bladensburg seven miles distant, where he might enjoy a sort of "random meditation, fancy free," for a few days at the end of which time he promised to appear in the Senate Il... and primed with a three hours' speech. He must, however, have some books of reference from the Congressional library and a scribe to make notes for him, also, it was agreed that a little wine to steady his wavering nerves would be good. All these were furnished the scribe, the books and a whole basket of wine, together with the Senator were sent to Bladensburg in a carriage. One day passed—two days—a week—and no Senator or his speech. The kind friend to whose assistance so much was due, finally concluded that he had better go to Bladensburg to see how the Senator was progressing in the work of collecting his scattered thoughts on reconstruction. Arriving in that quiet little village, he made various inquiries as to the whereabouts of the California statesman but he could hear nothing. There hadn't been a Senator there at all—the good country folk were certain of that. At last in response to some pretty sharp questions, an old farmer said he was pretty certain there was no Senator in the village, there was however, a couple of very badly behaved strangers in a house over yonder they had come from Washington a few days ago had taken lodgings with a widow lady but had gotten into a drunken quarrel, and had a very ugly fight, threatened to put the woman out of her house and wound up by beating one another so badly that if the neighbors hadn't been called in they would have killed each other. They were now pretty badly off and lied both under the doctor's treatment. Nothing further was needed to convince W—— that he was on track of his Senatorial friend, who, far from steadying his nerves, had got tight as a fiddler on it and had made the scribe tight too.

And so it proved, over at the widow's house was the Senator and the scribe in a badly demoralized condition—both recovering from a sad debauch, in which the servant had so far forgotten his duty to his master as to black his eyes, and the master had so far descended from the dignity of an employer as to indulge in a rough and tumble fight with the servant. The widow had a bill of damages against the fractious pair for a broken looking-glass and a few dislocated chairs, but more anxious even than for the liquidation of this claim was she that the "nasty beasts" should be taken away from her house. In vain was she told that the guest was a Senator of the United States. She knew better than that. Senators didn't get drunk and scare innocent women almost to death. He was nothing but a drunken loafer, and she hoped never to look upon his like again. The erring Senator and his scribe were conducted back to the city of Washington, and the work of "a boring off" the former for a speech was abandoned as hopeless—and a great and contemplated oration remains to this day undelivered.

Oregon School Lands.

The following letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office to Senator Corbett, relating to school lands in this State, has been placed at our disposal. It was written in reply to certain inquiries addressed by Senator Corbett to the Commissioner.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, Jan. 11, 1867.

HON. H. W. CORBETT—Sir: Referring to the memoranda filed by you this morning, concerning the approval of lands selected by the Governor of Oregon for educational purposes, I have the honor to state that eighteen lists of selections, made by the Governor of Oregon, in parts satisfaction of the 500,000 acre grant of 4th September 1841, were received at this office in November last.

From "remarks" made on the lists aforesaid, it appears that the lands so selected, have been appropriated by the State for common school purposes, and it seems probable that they are the selections to which you refer, inasmuch as no school selections (proper) in the State of Oregon have as yet been reported to this office.

I have to inform you that they have been posted in our Tract Books and carefully examined in connection with the law of Congress and instructions of this office. Some of the selections are found to be in conflict with the claims of pre-emptors, and selections have, in some instances, been made of 16th and 36th sections, which are an absolute grant to the State for schools, and may not be selected for internal improvement or other purposes.

In view of the importance to the school interests of the State of Oregon, of speedy action on the selections in question, as set forth in your communication to this office, clear lists of the selections not interfered with, will be prepared with as much dispatch as the business of the office will permit, and submitted to the Secretary of the Interior for his approval, after which a certified transcript of the selections as approved, will be transmitted to the Governor of Oregon.

Yours respectfully, JAS. S. WILSON,
Commissioner.

An Excellent Opportunity to Illustrate English Neutrality

The present time would afford our Government an admirable opportunity to give Great Britain a valuable lesson drawn from her own teachings A few years ago, when the administration of the laws was obstructed in certain States of the American Union, the British Government with eager and unbecoming haste, instantly seized the opportunity to accord full belligerent rights to the insurgents At the present time the authority of England is set at defiance in Ireland, and the people in several places have appeared in arms Now again, there is a most favorable opportunity to illustrate the doctrine of English neutrality A rare chance is offered to show Great Britain how beautifully the rule works which she established Before the rebellion in America was fairly in operation she recognized the Confederates as belligerents; why shouldn't our Government do the same thing for the Irish? One good turn deserves another, the world over Such action by the United States would enable Great Britain to fully appreciate the rare excellence of her own mode of doing business She can never properly understand it, in all its comprehensive operations, until the application is made to her own case Now therefore, is the time to give her a lesson in illustration of her own principles

Following the precedent set by England herself, our Government would be fully justified in granting belligerent rights to the Irish. The cases are in every respect entirely parallel. If it was right for England to allow Confederate vessels to be fitted out in her ports to destroy our commerce it is equally allowable for the United States to permit the Irish to arm and to put to sea from our ports with vessels intended to capture and destroy British ships. And if vessels should appear in our ports bearing the Irish flag, they would be entitled to all the rights that were extended to Confederate cruisers by England during the late rebellion in this country. We do not believe there is an American who would not behold with satisfaction the recognition by the United States of the belligerent rights of Ireland. It is hardly six years since England set the example, and it would be a strict fulfillment of justice to show her how instructions like these can return to plague the inventor.

A repeats are no contradictory that it is not possible to judge of the extent of the outbreak in Ireland. But it is evident that the people have the spirit of resistance. And though resistance on their part may seem to others to be madness, yet when the deplorable condition of the Irish people is remembered, men who pity the misfortunes of their fellow men cannot censure them The British Government will doubtless put the rising down But these demonstrations may eventually work out some good. They may lead to reform. It was said that the way to cure seditions was to take away the matter of them, and England may yet be induced to act upon this principle in relation to Ireland. She may yet learn that it is cheaper to govern with justice than to pursue the policy to which she has hitherto adhered.

A Simon Pure.

The Amador (Cal.) Dispatch is a Democratic journal. It takes great credit to itself for being rebelliously inclined. The following from its columns is about as soundly Democratic as anything we have lately seen:

> "We rebelled against the unwarranted and unwarrantable assumption of power by Lincoln, the first tyrant of the United States, whose infamous and ungodly career * * * was closed by the bullet sped from the pistol of the American Brutus."

This ought to entitle the writer, after his death, to a place in the catalogue of Democratic saints Oregon, it appears, is not singular in having malignantly rebellious Democrats within her borders California has some of the same stamp. It is almost unnecessary to add that the writer of the above extract, though admitting that he and his party rebelled, yet like all the rest of his fellow rebels and partisans, now claims to be a Union man! Were he in this State he would be known among his friends as a genuine "simon-pure"

The Saints pay tithes in Utah. Brigham Young, the potent hierarch, has provided that "when a man joins the Mormon Church, as it exists in Utah, he is required, as a proof of his sincerity, to pay the tithing office one-tenth of all his possessions, no matter what they are, or how extensive they may be. A man, with $100,000 in money must, upon his entry into fellowship, give the tithing office $10,000 of it. This is the first grand principle of Utah Mormonism. If the man during the year makes $10,000 by a judicious investment of his remaining $90,000, he must give the tithing office $4,000 of the amount. This is the second grand principle of Utah Morthonism, and upon these two principles hang all the law and the profits. If a man has no money or other property, he is required to give one-tenth of his labor to the tithing office; thus he labors nine days for himself, and the tenth he gives to the Church in such a manner as he may be directed" As to the mode in which the funds thus raised are expended, no revelation has been made Probably Brigham Young keeps the key of the strong box, and hoards and disburses at will The plan is well conceived for taxing every one to an extent utterly unknown elsewhere

The rebel General Hill has published an algebra for the use of schools. The following is one of the problems he offers for solution

"A gentleman in Richmond expressed a willingness to liberate his slave, valued at $1,000, upon the receipt of that sum from charitable persons He received contributions from twenty four persons, and of these there were 14-19 fewer from the North than from the South, and the average donation of the former was 4-5 smaller than that of the latter. What was the entire amount given by each?

Still harping upon their slaves! These people can never forget their happiness under the old system when they were supported by the unrequited labor of others

The New Hampshire election has, as usual gone Republican The majority of Harriman for Governor is about the same as that received by Lincoln in 1864 The three Congressmen are Republicans. The next State that will vote will be Connecticut. Her annual election takes place on the first Monday in April

The total number of arrests in Mobile, during the past year were 5,116, of which 3 138 were whites, and 1,980 negroes When it is remembered that the colored population in Mobile is several thousand greater than that of the white, the "superiority" of the latter race in that city is made strikingly manifest by the above.

The New York Times says that in that district the whole amount of whiskey tax received by the Government during the three summer months to have been only $21,018 60, while a low estimate shows it should have been $1,225 000

The oldest newspaper in the world is the Gazette de France It is in its two hundred and thirty sixth year.

SOUTH AMERICAN BEEF.—An enterprising Connecticut man has succeeded in curing beef in South America so that it can be safely put up and brought north It costs, cured, a cent and a half per pound. The freight costs two dollars a barrel, and when brought to market it is equally good and brings the same price as prime mess beef put up at Chicago.

Almost all the colleges in the North last year increased their endowments.

Validity of a Judgment for the Payment of Taxes in Coin

The following says the Salem Unionist, of the 11th, was received last week from a friend in Washington City It contains the opinion of the United States Supreme Court in the case stated, involving the question of the validity of the law upon the Nevada statutes requiring the payment of tax in gold or silver coin The opinion given in the last paragraph bears directly upon the question of the constitutionality of any Territory or State enacting laws refusing to accept legal tender notes in payment of taxes Oregon readers will find this decision peculiarly interesting

The Act of February 1862 Providing for the Payment of Debts in Legal Tenders F Mandelbaum and A Klauber plaintiffs in error, vs the People of the United States in the Territory of Nevada This was an action commenced in the District Court of Ormsby county, Nevada Territory to recover for taxes alleged to be due from the plaintiffs in error The complaint avers that between the first Monday in March and the first Monday in August, 1862, the plaintiffs in error were assessed in pursuance of the Territorial law for goods in a store occupied by them in Carson City, Nevada, assessed at $70 000, twenty tons of hay, $800 goods in another store $6,500 lumber and timber, $800 one hundred tons of hay $1 000 on which was levied for the fiscal year 1862, a Federal tax of $81 90 a Territorial tax of $327 60, and a county tax of $1 228 50

The plaintiffs in error answered, alleging that they had paid all taxes for that year and a supplemental answer denied that the assessment alleged in the complaint had ever been made The amended complaint set up a "subsequent assessment" made in accordance with the provisions of law, between the first Monday in August and the last Saturday in October To this reply was made that the hay was part of a growing crop produced from the ranch of the plaintiffs in error in Douglas county, and was not harvested or removed into Ormsby county until after they had been assessed for all their property including this ranch in Douglas county, that of the extra amount of goods about $8 000 in value, had been included in the assessment in Douglas county, that the remainder was bought from the proceeds of their business in the counties of Douglas and Ormsby, all of which had been assessed and the taxes paid for the year long before the assessment alleged in the complaint, that the timber and lumber were not owned by them until after they were assessed and their taxes paid for the year and they were had in the regular course of their business for the year

On motion of the plaintiffs above and without notice to the defendants, as alleged, the court struck out all the answer except the obligation respecting the $8 000, and upon the hearing it was found that the defendants had been assessed for and paid taxes on goods of the value of $18 000, part of the property mentioned, and were entitled to a credit for that amount on their taxes in Ormsby county, and judgment was given for $1,522, being the tax on the rest of the property of the assessed value of $76,100 and costs, such judgment to be collected in gold and silver coin of the United States Appeal was therefore taken to the Supreme Court of the Territory, where the judgment was affirmed, and the cause thence came here, the plaintiffs in error contending that the striking out of the principal part of the answer, ex parte, the answer containing a valid defence, was error It was equivalent to a judgment on demurrer to a valid answer in favor of the plaintiffs

On the merits it is claimed that under the act relied upon the commissioners were only authorized to levy a tax of sixty cents on every hundred dollars' value of property, whereas the tax for which the suit was brought was $1 50 on every one hundred dollars The levy was therefore void, nor was there any levy by law, nor authority given by law to the county commissioners to make the levy of a Territorial tax The act in question (of November 29 1861) omitted to make any provision on the subject. The levy of the Territorial tax was, therefore, also void

These errors are apparent on the face of the pleadings in the plaintiffs' own statement of their case, and upon an inspection of the record, the court will observe and cancel them. It is no objection that these defences were not specially made in the District Court But the judgment of the District Court was erroneous in being rendered for gold and silver coin of the United States The obligation to pay the tax, if a subject of suit as it is treated in this case, is a debt, within the act of Congress of February 25, 1862, making the Treasury notes issued in pursuance of it a legal tender in payment of debts The judgment was in direct conflict with the act, as in requiring the payment of coin it denied the right of payment in legalized paper currency

ASTORIA LOT SALE

THE PROPRIETOR OF THE TOWN OF ASTORIA in order to pay his debts and carry [illegible] improvements offers to the public to greater [illegible] the unsold lots within the corporate limits [illegible] that will arrest attention and tempt investment

The property will be divided into six hundred parcels and distributed among the purchasers [illegible] half the parcels will be single lots [illegible] which is worth less than $50, and many of them are worth [illegible] $150 each at the present selling rates. The other half will be prize parcels [illegible] lots ranging in value from one hundred to six [illegible] dollars and the house and [illegible] dollars and the new [illegible] all finished with [illegible] under the [illegible] gether with three lots all as one prize valued at five thousand dollars. All the parcels will be sold at one uniform price of fifty dollars each.

As soon as all shares are all taken the distribution will be made by a committee consisting of the County Judge County Clerk and Sheriff and if either of them be absent the other [illegible]. The numbers of the lots composing each parcel will be written on separate ballots [illegible]. The purchasers names will be written on as many separate ballots as they have subscribed for shares and sealed up and placed in another box. The boxes being well shaken a ballot will be drawn from each and the name and the description of the property drawn will be recorded by the Clerk and then another will be drawn and recorded until all are drawn. The record of the drawing will be certified by the committee of officers and warranty deeds will be immediately executed in accordance therewith and delivered to the purchasers or to their authorized agents, who will pay the purchase money on receipt of the deed. The title is a patent certificate under the Donation Law.

This is not a lottery but a joint purchase of several parcels of land with an agreement to [illegible] of equal value for the purpose of distribution and to assign them by lot as a Court would make partition

Situated in the mouth of the Columbia river at the only spot where a town can be built with a harbor of sufficient capacity to shelter a large amount of shipping, and accessible by both ocean ships and river boats in all weathers, Astoria can have no rival as the entrepot for the commerce of the river. Rivals [illegible] have been projected but scarcely the ruins of a house now mark their sites—while Astoria has grown steadily up to the condition of a respectable little city, and increases faster every year than it did the year before.

On the two points between which ships enter the river are the two forts, Stevens and Hancock in full view of the town with their wharves, workshops, barracks and officers' quarters, each a respectable village, where the Government has entered upon a series of works which with their garrisons will involve the disbursement of millions of dollars. And, considering that this is the gate to an interior country of three [illegible] States besides Oregon, all glittering with veins of gold and silver no expense is likely to be spared in guarding it. The travel and traffic between that region and San Francisco is already immense. It will never cease, nor cease increasing. And there, at the gate will stand Astoria, and all the steamships and river boats must come to her wharves as they ply the ever increasing commerce of four States. Three regular lines of steamships are now employed, and at certain seasons extra trips are made. At present they extend their voyages to Portland, and if no change in that respect is ever made still the prosperity of Astoria is sure. It is now exhibiting a greater proportionate increase in buildings, business and wealth than any other town on the Pacific coast. No real estate is so sure of a constant advance, and none so likely to take a sudden rise to many times its present value. That it is offered for sale at home, among those who know it best and who can appreciate the liberality of the offer proves that it possesses all the value and advantages attributed to it, and presents a tempting opportunity for either speculation or investment. Why, then, is the offer made? Why is the property put up at a raffle at prices which average less than half the selling rates? Only because the sales to citizens for actual improvement, at full prices, at the rate of three to five thousand dollars a year, on time, as heretofore, is no longer adapted to the circumstances of the proprietor, who has become an invalid and must hasten to complete the improvements and enterprise which he has in hand.

The following extracts from a letter published in the New York Independent of September 27th, 1866 from Prof Wood who made the tour of the Pacific States last summer, gives the impressions of a sagacious and impartial stranger

ASTORIA, OREGON Aug 11, 1866

'I write from this renowned place Astoria stands upon the left bank of the Columbia ten miles from its final commingling with the ocean A narrow interval of level ground, from tide to bluff, say two miles in length by two furlongs in width, affords convenient and pleasant footing for, at present, about seventy white buildings, including custom house, court house, hotels stores, shops and dwellings Several fine dwellings also stand high up on the hills in the rear enjoying a landscape in front of marvelous beauty Astoria enjoys a climate of remarkable salubrity Diseases may exist, but I hear nothing of them, and the atmosphere perfumed by the vast coniferous forests, or purified by the expanse of the waters of the Pacific, brings only health and vigor to these shores Hence, it is a favorite resort for invalids and tourists from the interior, in search either of health or recreation It is occupied and controlled by a population chiefly of New England origin They maintain an efficient public school, now under the direction of a graduate of Yale, for the education of their two hundred children

'Astoria occupies a position geographically, which should entitle her to supremacy in commerce as the New Orleans of the Columbia, and the Astorians maintain that she is yet destined to attain it At present, however Portland is the undoubted metropolis, a city located one hundred miles above this, not on the Columbia, but on its chief tributary the Willamet This is an anomaly, yet readily explained The valley of the Willamet is by far the largest and best agricultural district in the State and Portland is its mart, while the region back of Astoria is yet forest with only here and there a small section subdued For this good reason at present, Astoria has less than 1 000 inhabitants while Portland has 8,000 and for the other good reason its commanding position, this little city is the only port of entry for the State The future importance of Astoria seems inevitable and must more than keep pace with the development of [illegible] or agricultural resources"

The seventy houses estimated by Prof. Wood were at that time more than a hundred, and since then the largest and most costly store in the town has been built, and a church steam saw mill, brewery and one of the best tanneries on the Pacific coast, together with wharfing and the usual annual addition of dwellings and other buildings. Another church is to be built next season, and a number of houses are under contract Each summer the carpenters are overtasked Next season the demand will be greater than ever Workmen of all trades are greatly needed This is their opportunity this is everybody's opportunity; every person should own some property at the seaport and summer resort of Oregon To improve and use, there is none so eligible for health, schools and profitable employment As merchandise to sell for profit, none will give so great an advance on cost As a means to lay up money for the future, no other is so safe, or will return so many fold Not a ticket but will draw a fifty dollar lot, and two thirds of them will draw prizes of two, four and six lots each, or a lot worth from twice the cost of the ticket to a hundred times its cost In such a raffle every one should try his luck

Mr O P FERRY is agent in Portland, to issue certificates or title bonds and has at his office a map of the town, showing the parcels or shares into which the property is divided, and a photograph of a portion of the town and of the cottage homestead which constitutes the capital prize Each purchaser of a ticket will give to Mr Ferry his duebill for the purchase money, payable when he receives a deed for the property which he shall draw The distribution is expected to come off within two months judging from the rapidity with which the shares are being taken—over a hundred having been taken in Astoria alone in the last few days

LOUIS A CARNETT ... President and Manager.
JOHN HEWSTON, Jr ... Chemist and Superintendent

THIS COMPANY HAVING GREATLY enlarged their Refining Works, and introduced many other important improvements, are pleased to announce that they feel warranted in again reducing materially their terms of doing business

THE TARIFF OF CHARGES

Which they now submit to the public—considered with reference to the cost of material and labor—is lower than in any other part of the world, and secures to the mining interest of this coast an important increase in both the minting and commercial value of bullion

Their charges hereafter will be as follows

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED GOLD BARS

One eighth of one per cent (heretofore a quarter) for all amounts over $1,000, and two dollars for any smaller sum Returns made in twenty four hours

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED SILVER BARS

Two dollars for the gold contained, up to $1,000, and one-eighth of one per cent for all amounts over that sum, and one per cent on the silver contained Returns made in twenty four hours.

FOR REFINING DEPOSITS MADE FOR COIN OR FINE BARS

On bullion under 300 parts gold 2 cents per ounce

On bullion from 300 to 600 parts gold, 4 cents per ounce

On bullion from 600 to 750 parts gold, 6 cents per ounce

On bullion from 750 to 900 parts gold 8 cents per ounce

Above 900 the only charge will be for coinage But there will be no charge for refining less than two dollars

FOR COINING GOLD

This charge will be the same as at the Mint—a half of one per cent —and which is paid by us to that institution There will be no charge in future for making fine gold or silver bars from bullion refined by us

RETURNS IN COIN IN FORTY EIGHT HOURS

Silver contained in deposits for coin will be accounted for at the same rate customary at the Mint

Gold bars of other Assayers, in good standing, will be cashed by us at the highest market rates

Dust and bullion can be forwarded to us from any part of the country and returns made through Wells, Fargo & Co's Express

CHARGES AT U S BRANCH MINT

For the convenience of those not familiar with the terms of the Mint, we subjoin the tariff of charges now in force at that institution

For refining bullion under 300 parts gold 8 cents per ounce

For refining bullion from 300 to 600 parts gold, 6 cents per ounce

For refining bullion from 600 to 750 parts gold, 7 cents per ounce

For refining bullion from 750 to 800 parts gold 11 cents per ounce

For refining bullion from 800 to 940 parts gold 14 cents per ounce

The charge for coinage is half of one per cent and the charge for making gold and silver bars the same

Comparing the net value of deposits for coinage, with the proceeds of unparted gold bars sold in the market—assuming that the purchaser gets five per cent—they must be at the following par rates to equal the return which would have been made had they been deposited for coinage

880 par to equal Mint return at refining charge of 14 cents

846 par to equal Mint return at refining charge of 14 cents

805 par to equal San Francisco A & R Works return at refining charge of 8 cents

[illegible]—Now that a "regular freeze" is upon us, and giving a splendid chance for a saving of ice for use in the hot months, we will note in brief some facts concerning this important article of commerce. From the earliest times ice and snow have been esteemed as luxuries for cooling water and other liquors in the warm climates of the East. As the cold of snow in the time of harvest, so is a faithful messenger to them that send him (Proverbs xxv 13.) In modern times from having been used only as a luxury its use has extended until it has almost become one of the necessities of life for the people. Its chief value consists perhaps in its antiseptic property,—i. e. offering a resistance to putrefaction. Meats and fish are preserved fresh by it more perfectly and efficiently than by any other means. It is of great advantage to vessels at sea which formerly found it impossible to supply the table with fresh meat and live animals. Especially in the fever of hot climates ice is a most grateful application but it is often the only means of saving life. Its introduction into India is considered a blessing by the inhabitants. In many parts of the world artificial means to produce ice are used. The [illegible] and Romans boiled the water they wished [illegible] upon the belief that it congealed more rapidly [illegible] more free from air bubbles. In modern [illegible] cheapest method costs about 5½ cents per [illegible] the composition employed being fragments of ice [illegible] salt, or nitrate of ammonia, and water. In [illegible] snow is collected from the mountains and [illegible] in the adjoining caves, as is the case of Italian [illegible] who supply the city of Naples. The first person [illegible] ice for commercial purposes in the United [illegible] Frederic Tudor, of Boston in 1805. He [illegible] however until after the war of 1812. The American article is of much superior quality. There are [illegible] ice houses erected in places where the demand is great. The one built in Calcutta in 1845 by Mr [illegible] will hold 30,000 tons. The city of New York consumes 300,000 tons annually, 120 000 tons of which [illegible] from Rockland Lake, Orange county of the [illegible] Our coast is supplied principally from the [illegible] ice the year round, by the Commercial [illegible], whose office is in San Francisco. Mustang Liniment.

OVER A MILLION DOLLARS SAVED!

Gentlemen —"I had a negro man worth $1 200 who took cold from a bad hurt in the leg, and was useless for over a year. I had used everything I could hear of without benefit until I tried the Mexican Mustang Liniment. It soon effected a permanent cure
J L DOWNING
Montgomery Ala., June 17, 1859

"I take pleasure in recommending the Mexican Mustang Liniment as a valuable and indispensable article for Sprains, Sores, Scratches or Galls on Horses. Our men have used it for Burns Bruises, Sores, Rheumatism, &c , and all say it acts like magic. J W HEWITT,
Foreman American, Wells, Fargo's and Harnden s Express

"The sprain of my daughter's ankle, occasioned while skating last winter was entirely cured in one week after she commenced using your celebrated Mustang Liniment Gloucester Mass , Aug 1, 1865 ED SEELY"

It is an admitted fact that the Mexican Mustang Liniment performs more cures in shorter time, on man and beast than any article ever discovered. Families, livery men and planters should always have it on hand. Quick and sure it certainly is. All genuine is wrapped in steel plate engravings, bearing U S Stamp of DEMAS BARNES & Co over the top

An effort has been made to counterfeit it with a cheap stone plate label. Look closely!

The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice

Drift on, my Bark

Drift on, my bark! The sunbeams sleep
Upon the tranquil tide
The ling'ring waters idly creep
And nestle to thy side
The languid breeze that lightly plays
Its softest sweetest air
Upon the river fails to raise
One golden ripple there
And on my breast she is at rest
Drift on, drift on

Drift on my bark The day is worn
The shadows round us close
O'er distant hill and waving corn
The dying sunset glows
The sapphire tide grown dark at last
Wakes with a dreamy sigh
And joins the breeze, now rising fast
In mournful lullaby
But still I hear a whisper near
Drift on, drift on

Drift on, my bark The night winds chill
Sweep round,—the bittern calls —
O'er waving corn and distant hill
The gathering darkness falls
One pale and solitary star
Steals out a timid flight,
The curfew bell chimes out afar
A musical good night!
The day is done we are alone
Drift on, drift on!

The Improvements at the White House

The correspondent of the New York Times, speaking of the recent improvements at the White House, says:

With the exception of the Red Room which is the private parlor of the ladies at the house the general characteristics of the parlors have been unchanged. In it the deep red velvet paper on the walls has been replaced with colors not quite so sombre and gloomy, with wainscotings of crimson velvet and bright gildings on the walls sufficient to entitle it to its old patronymic, and forming a tout ensemble perfectly charming and exceedingly imposing The old furniture having been repaired, and made more modern in its appearance, with pliant French springs and elegant crystal coverings, remains as of yore, and retains its crimson color. The curtains are made of brocatel, and deeply indented figures, and bordered with maize and gold galloons The drapery pendant from the richly gilded cornices over the tops of the windows is also of crimson brocatel, and is ornamented with a superb bullion tassel, which is suspended gracefully in the center and which is attached to the drapery by means of a cornucopia shaped inclosure, called in the vernacular of the upholsterer "pipe drapery." The magnificent French plate-glass mirrors, the frames of which have been regilded, have been cleaned and polished.

The Blue Room is undoubtedly the gem of the house. It retains its color, save that under the refinishing, repairing, regilding and general cleaning up, which it has been submitted to, it now appears brighter and more cheerful. The broad paneling on the walls, bordered with rich lines of gilt, have been retouched, as also have the brilliant frescoes overhead, and now the medallion figures of Flora, War, Peace and Ceres, in the ceiling are as bright as ever A great addition has been made to its general appearance by an improvement in the arrangement of the curtains of the windows and the chandeliers, by which a greater flood of light than before permeates every corner and renders it pleasant in the extreme The inviting circular divan in the center of the room has been covered with bright blue brocatel, and the flower vase which stands in its center has, like everything else requiring it, been regilded The curtains, draperies and furniture are similar to those of the Red Room in quality, and only differ from it in color.

The Green Room, under the influences of the late changes, presents much the same appearance as of old, except that it appears fresher and more inviting. It is cleaner, the panels and gildings are more distinct, the registers are whiter, with more pleasing gildings, and the ornaments are brighter. It, like the other small parlors, is furnished with brocatel curtains and draperies, with heavy bullion tassels, and the finest white Irish linen window shades.

The short passages between the parlors, just west of and leading into the East Room, have also been subjected to great improvement, while the main hall, located in the rear of the glass partition, which is the first object attracting the visitor's attention from the main entrance, and in which the busts of Lincoln, Fillmore and John Quincy Adams occupy niches, has been matted with soft matting and carpeted with sound remnants of the old carpeting in the East Room.

The East Room itself is, of course, the glory of the mansion. The old papering was stripped from the walls, the chandeliers were taken down, the mirrors were also removed, the furniture taken out, and after a thorough cleansing and clearing away of dust and dirt, which had been collecting for years, the painters did their work, the paper-hangers spread over the rough walls a thin silk paper, on which brilliant designs have been painted and gilded, the frames of the mirrors were renewed, the chandeliers were regilded, and their broken glass pendants replaced by new ones, and the furniture, having been repaired, refringed, etc., was replaced, and now the room is, for the first time in many years, respectable in appearance. In fact it is more than respectable, and seems recherche. The windows are curtained with massive brocatel, indented and bordered like those of the Red Room, but are a little deeper crimson in color. The frescoes on the ceiling have been retouched, and now appear bright and sparkling. The many-jetted chandeliers, flashing their brilliant lights through crystal globes, and long drooping glass pendants, all being reflected in turn a thousand times by the huge mirrors placed exactly opposite each other, produce an effect which is worthy of the Executive mansion of our Chief Magistrate Here in this room, where the beautiful and the brave, the honored and the gay of our nation have for three generations paid homage to the different men who have occupied the White House, we have for the first time in the memory of a tolerably old inhabitant, a fitness of arrangements which is suitable.

Axminster carpets cover the floors of all the parlors, while that of the state dining room is rich Brussels. Like all the rest of the house, this last mentioned room is also improved. The long, wide table, at which so many of the great minds of the past, prominent men of our own and other nations have congregated, has been re-painted and varnished. The windows have been newly curtained, and the chimney ornaments newly gilded. The life-size painting of Washington by Trumbull, which was cut out of its frame as it hung in the Capitol, by Mrs. Madison, when the British captured the city, has been re-varnished and cleaned, and now forms a prominent feature in the appointments of the room The sideboards, chairs, and furniture of every description, all shew the beneficent influence of varnish and fresh painting.

The ladies' reception room, in which they remain while waiting for a business audience with the President, on the second floor, and in short, every room in the house has been cleaned and thoroughly repaired. In the second story office rooms, and in some of the family private rooms, the old carpets and curtains of the parlor down stairs have been used to economical advantage

Many of the chairs, which were carried off during the interim of President Johnson's bachelor-hall life with Preston King, have been recovered, and it is fair to say that, as a whole, the house is at least comfortably furnished.

It will be remembered by those who have visited the White House, that the windows of the first floor are very high, and for that reason, considerable trouble has been experienced in getting curtains of sufficient length. The lace curtains, for which a messenger was sent to Europe, have not yet arrived, and none could be found ready made which were long enough Those ordered are now about finished, having been made entirely by hand, and will soon be here. The large window in the East Room will probably cost $5,000 when fully completed, and the others not less than $2,000 each.

A Truly American Idea.—If any American yet lives in ignorance of the triumph of scientific American skill in the manufacture of watches, he should be advised to provide himself with the information, in the form of a Waltham watch, at his earliest convenience Every one knows, of course, that we have no labor in this country, skilled or otherwise, which will consent to compete in cheapness with that of Europe How then is a watch, almost the whole cost of which is in labor, to be produced here in its perfection at once better and cheaper than it can be imported? The problem was solved, as many another of the same kind has been by the application of exact science and inventive genius. To make machinery for the production of every piece required, in perfect proportion and finish, was the initial labor, which once done, was done always, instead of being to do over on every watch, as in the hand made work of European manufacturers Hence, the Waltham watches are precisely alike, after each kind and since their parts could be interchanged without difficulty, it follows that they must run together as accurately as they are adapted to each other, and may be, as they are, warranted with entire certainty. Nothing was ever more successful, as a scientific or business effort. The works now cover three acres, and employ a thousand operatives It is estimated that the American Watch Company, which commenced business ten years ago, make nearly half the watches sold in the United States.—Scientific American.

The Mole

Dull and sombre as the mole appears to be, it is by far the fiercest and most active animal within the British isles Indeed, so remarkable is it for these qualities, that I doubt whether the great fear of tropical climates can equal it either in ferocity activity or voracity From seeing the animal eat, I can readily conceive the fury with which it must be animated when it fights, and can perfectly appreciate the truth of the assertion that it has been observed to fling itself upon a small bird, tear its body open and to devour it while still palpitating with life Nothing short of this fiery energy could sustain an animal in the life long task of forcing itself through the hard earth and it may be well imagined that when two male moles of equal strength happen to meet the combat must be of the most furious kind Size is only of relative importance and in point of fact a battle between two moles is as tremendous as between two lions, if not more so, because the mole is more courageous than the lion and relatively speaking, is far more powerful, and armed with weapons far more destructive

Magnify the mole to the size of the lion and you will have a beast more terrible than the world has yet seen Though nearly blind and therefore incapable of following prey by sight it would be active beyond conception springing this way and that way as it goes along so as to cover a large amount of space leaping with lightning quickness upon any animal which it met rending it to pieces in a moment, thrusting its blood thirsty snout into the body of its victim, eating the still warm and bleeding flesh and instantly searching for a fresh prey Such a creature would without the least hesitation, devour a serpent twenty feet in length, and so terrible would be its voracity that it would eat twenty or thirty such snakes in a day With one grasp of its teeth and one stroke of its claws it could tear an ox asunder and if it should happen to enter a fold of sheep or an enclosure of cattle it would kill them all for mere lust of slaughter There are many burrowing animals but the mole is emphatically the burrower and absolutely riots in the exuberance of animal spirits and muscular activity passing through the earth almost like fish through the water and giving to its strange, and apparently sombre life, a poetry and interest which we fail to find in the lives of many creatures more richly endowed with external beauty —Homes Without Hands

Tragic Anecdotes.—A recent number of La Patrie relates the following startling incident!

M Sam relates that he was standing at a ball given at the Tuileries talking to the great chemist, Dr Lisfranc when he perceived him suddenly become pale and move from his position M Sam, fancying that his friend had been taken ill, followed him out to the Salle des Marechaux There, having recovered his equanimity, he said "I have just seen a beautiful young bride waltzing with her second husband Now, I am perfectly convinced she murdered her first husband. It had been a love match, but the young man discovered that he had made a fatal mistake, and his health visibly declined. One morning he was found dead in his bedroom, which his wife had filled with flowers, especially with hyacinths Their poisonous emanations had evidently killed him On being summoned to examine into the cause of his death, I perfectly remember having related, in his wife's hearing, a case of poisoning produced by those very flowers, and on learning that a scandalous intrigue on her part had been the cause of his misery, I have not the slightest doubt that the wretched woman took this mode of regaining her liberty" This anecdote recalls another, which one of the first physicians in Paris related a few days ago as having occurred to him during the course of his practice He had been for some time in attendance on a wealthy merchant, whose illness, though of a painful nature, was not dangerous Much to Dr N's surprise the symptoms became complicated, and M X got rapidly worse. Dr N asked to see the mixture his patient had been taking during the night, and remarked to the servant that the glass from which he had apparently drunk was not clean "No one, sir, touches it but madame," replied the servant Pouring a little water into it, Dr N put it to his lips. He then asked to see Madame X alone. She was young and lovely "Is my husband worse?" she inquired, with great apparent anxiety "Yes, madame, but he must improve rapidly. Do you hear, madame?—in a week he must be cured" The lady's fair cheek grew pale. "But, doctor," "You have understood me, madame, good morning." The patient recovered within the given time, and M. and Madame X. gave a ball last week and looked as jolly a couple as you would wish to see.

An Instructive Comparison.—The population of the United States may be stated in round numbers at 30,000,000. The number of books of all kinds published in this country during the 12 years preceding 1842 was 1,092. This included reprints, translations, essays, etc From 1856 to 1858 the total number of publications was 5 462 During the first six months of the present year 751 volumes of all kinds were published Those estimates are rather above than below mark The number of books exported from this country is too insignificant to be mentioned Our imports are absolutely less than those of Belgium, of Switzerland or Spain. The population of France is between 35,000,000 and 36,000,000. The National Quarterly Review, which has gathered some curious facts on book publications, remarks that in 1855 there were published in France 8,285 literary works alone The number of musical compositions published in France in that year, was greater than that of all the books issued or reissued in this country. The total number of publication in France from 1811 to 1855 was nearly fifty thousand

The population of Austria is between 30,000,000 and 37,000,000 The number of publications in 1854 was 21,039 More books were published in the single province of Hungary than in the entire United States.

The population of the United Kingdom is 32,000,000 The number of books published from 1816 to 1851 was 45 072 During 12 recent years, our annual publication was a fraction over one hundred books, the average for England was 1,252.

The population of Holland is little, if any, over 3,000,000, one tenth of our own Yet that little kingdom published in 1856, 1,868 books, many more than was issued by all the presses in the United States. The number of newspapers published in this country, however, probably exceeds that of all Europe, and the best part of the American mind finds expression in our periodical literature.

The Elephant as a Walker.—We have found two curious points overlooked or ignored by writers—one is the rapid and noiseless movements of this animal in the thickest cover, the other his capabilities of passing over ground for him apparently unfeasible The elastic, noiseless foot fall of the elephant has been frequently referred to by writers on Indian subjects, and has been rightly asserted to be the most agreeable feature in journeying on elephant back This peculiarity may be easily explained by an examination of the structure of the animal's foot, but the silent, stealthy way in which he will pass through the densest thicket, literally "slipping away," when his acute sense of smell or hearing warn him of danger, has been generally overlooked, and appears to us somewhat difficult of explanation Let any one unskilled in the mysteries of "bushranging" attempt to move even a few paces in an ordinary fox covert without noise and he will form some idea of the difficulties presented to the passage of so huge an animal as the elephant through the dense tangled undergrowth of a South African "bush" Yet that the animal despite his enormous bulk, will "drag on," when within a few yards of his pursuer without the slightest noise, and with the greatest rapidity even in the thickest cover, is undeniable Again his powers of passing over difficult ground are often underrated even by hunters When experiments were first made in India in training elephants to draw the gun, it was observed with surprise that the animal's power of ascending steep and rugged ground were far greater than had been anticipated The gun, a light six pounder with which the trial was first made, was drawn up a slope so steep as to require the animal to crawl upon its fore-knees, which it did without hesitation On the other hand, hampered by the gun and harness the elephant (a small female) showed unusual dread of soft and swampy ground

A Nice Tale for Little Folks.—The Tribune publishes the following good hit

James and Alfred were two good boys who had little ships and James ship sailed over the pond Alfred was so glad that he asked James to dinner, and they had gingerbread So James offered to give Alfred his little ship, as a proof that all of James' countrymen were so glad Alfred had given him such a nice dinner But Alfred wouldn't take the little ship because it was too good for him, and so both boys were glad and hoped their families would never quarrel For further particulars see cable dispatches

A Perfect Cure.—A lady in San Francisco, who had read in a newspaper that coal oil was death on chicken lice, examined her fowls, says the Alta and found them covered with the gentle crickets of Jerusalem She thereupon applied the coal oil in liberal quantities, fairly drenching their feathers with the fluid Next morning she discovered that the coal oil had not only killed all the hen lice, but it had done more—it had operated as a preventive as well as a cure Every hen was dead as a door nail, and beyond the reach of four-legged annoyances.

Copperheads and Negroes.—The Washington correspondent of the Boston Advertiser makes the following allusion to the tricks of the politicians in Washington, under date of Jan 23d

It is curious to see how easily the mind of the politician accommodates itself to the existing condition of things. But yesterday the Washington or Georgetown negro was nothing but a "nigger"—a nuisance, if you will, a creature without consequence at least. Now, behold how changed! Law has put the ballot into his own hands, and he is king in his own rights Yesterday the politician kicked and cuffed him off the side walk—to day he crooks the pregnant hinges of the knee before him And now, as of old, it is that thrift may follow fawning For, being in the full sense a citizen, Cuffee may make and unmake office holders However it may be elsewhere, here he is master of the situation and Patrick has been dethroned from his high place in the Democratic tabernacle

The first election under the new suffrage law will occur in Georgetown in February, when a Mayor and some minor offices are to be chosen Addison, the present chief magistrate of the old and sleepy borough, has occupied that position for many years, and is not at all averse to occupying it for at least one term more. He sees, as every other man of intelligence sees, that the negroes of the city hold the balance of power, and he and his friends are nursing the negro votes as carefully and tenderly as ever the Tammany politicians nursed the Irish vote In this city no election will be held until June, but the Democratic leaders are already "hedging" most industriously. Negroes get work under the city government far more easily than they did last fall, and, in a quiet way, the whole brood of office holders are cultivating amicable relations with the freedmen I expect to learn in May that several persons whom I have believed for four or five years to be most intense negro haters have always been very well disposed toward Sambo and his fellows in fact, among their warmest and most disinterested friends

Mr and Mrs Fubbs.—"Fubbs, I want to talk to you awhile, and I want you to listen while I do it You want to go to sleep but I don't I am not one of the sleepy kind It is a good thing for you, Mr Fubbs, that you have a wife who imparts information by lectures, else you'd be a perfect ignoramus Not a thing about the house to read except a small Bible which the Christian Association gave you, and a tract which that fellow Porter left here one day, entitled "Light for the Heathen" It is well he left it for you are a heathen, Fubbs You feel thankful you ain't a Mormon Yes, I understand that insinuation, you profane wretch! You mean you're glad you haven't but one wife You never would have known there was a Mormon, if I hadn't told you 'cause you're too stingy to take a paper! Now Fubbs, I declare your name ought to be Fibs, you tell so many of 'em It's only last week I lost a dollar and a half on butter I sold to a peddler, because I did not know the market price This would have paid for the paper a whole year And then you are so ignorant, Fubbs Don't you recollect when you took the gun and walked down to the big marsh a hunting, because some one said the Turkeys were marching into Russia! Yes you did you needn't deny it, Mr Fubbs Didn't kill any did you? It was a bad day for Turkeys, wasn't it, Fubbs? Ha! ha! ha!"

Don't Get Married.—The Virginia Enterprise is accountable for the following

We lately saw a fellow who had evidently been "pressing his tanzy" freely, holding a friend by the middle button of his vest while he read to him a lecture on matrimony "Don't ye get married Afford—don't ye get married! If ye get married yer goon up fer flume—ye'll be busted at Yo won't be married a week 'fore wife 'll put on worst shoes an' stick em rite upon her at ye 'fore your nose, an' when she gits all er of thes she wants she'll have sick sister down to San Jose—wants two hundred an' fifty dollars to go so'r poor sister—gits sissor dies—father law strait aned sirkstances wants two 'und'ed fifty dollars more bury poor sister goes into hunred fifty dollars worth mournin' then wants more money to go home an' calls ye dirty drunken beas—don't ye get married, Afford—don't get married!"

"What do you know of the defendant, Mr Thompson? Do you consider him a good musician?

"On that point I wish to swear with great care I do not wish to insinuate that Mr. Venslopes is not a good musician Not at all But I could not help observing (people will observe queer things at times) that after he commenced playing on the clarionet, a saw filer, who lived next door, left home, and has never yet been heard of."

They rather outdo us in England in regard to matrimonial advertising, judging from the following

Rosebud who is seventeen and pretty having golden hair, wishes to marry a tall young man about twenty four years of age

Violet wants to be married to a tall young man She is tall and very good looking

Lilla Rokh would dearly like to be married She moves in first class society, and has £500 a year She is eighteen, tall and strikingly handsome

Some of the fair applicants put the matter rather upon the ground of duty and destiny.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgence, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene Let parents, guardians friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies—see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans

AT THE

Bennett House,

SALEM, OREGON,

L. JAY S. TURNEY,

HAVING LEASED THE ABOVE NAMED HOTEL, is prepared to accommodate the traveling public, and ONE HUNDRED REGULAR BOARDERS, in as good style as any House on the Coast. He has determined to make the "Bennett" as good as the best and better than any public house in Salem He will soon complete some important improvements, which will add greatly to its appearance and comfort, and intends to merit and hopes to receive his share of patronage.

He has secured the services of "Charley" (known to be the best cook in Salem, and one of the best in the whole country) and other competent persons to manage the culinary department, and is resolved to set as good a table as can be found anywhere—not in clap-trap, pomp and show flummery and fine furniture, but in an abundant supply of the very best the market affords

His Bar room will be kept warmed and lighted and well supplied with newspapers periodicals and other suitable reading matter, and kept in a manner which will make it an agreeable resort

In short, he intends making an effort to please ALL who stop at the BENNETT HOUSE And he most respectfully requests his friends everywhere to give the old and well known stand at least one more trial before concluding they can do as well elsewhere, and promises if they are not well treated and properly cared for and at reasonable figures, it will not be the fault of the public's most obedient and most humble servant,
